

of early life in the Pacific NW. EUUC has been coming to Seabeck since 1969.

Registration: We can accommodate between 60 and 90 people depending on how rooms are assigned. We want to fill overall registration early this year in hopes of regaining lost space. That can only happen with filling early. We therefore urge you not to dally in securing your spot to this special event that makes our EUUC circle so much smaller.

EUUC Seabeck Fall retreat Sept 21-23 2018

Seabeck is an unhurried time to spend time together with family and friends, some of whom you may not yet know well. There is ample time to play games, share stories and have nature strolls on the grounds and beyond.

Program 2018

Theme: The theme for 2018 is Life as a circle. This theme will present itself in Saturday workshops and in songs throughout the weekend.

Friday gathering: Friday is the evening to make the journey across the water, leaving our workaday lives behind and opening out minds and souls for adventure. Dinner is not included, and options are limited in Seabeck. Games are plentiful in the lodge, and conversation starts in earnest. Arrival can be as early as 2PM or when you can make it. When darkness approaches, a gathering and campfire sing-along are held by the lagoon, and we sing the night away.

Saturday invocation: Saturday morning (after breakfast and possibly a stroll to watch deer) is an all-camp session to reflect on some aspect of our lives and community. Past sessions have ranged from exercise and health to Global Culture.

Mixing: One of the goals of Seabeck is to get the opportunity to stretch our social circles and creative powers through a structured activity. Some tell the joys and unexpected pleasure in getting a chance to go further than Sunday-Deep with someone else while at the Seabeck Retreat.

Meals: Meals at Seabeck are family style with a salad bar that offers options to suit special dietary requirements. The camp is also very accommodating to special dietary needs, if advised ahead of time.

Accommodations: Accommodations are varied, and there are single occupant options in the annex. Others are in rooms with up to 4 beds. Costs vary with the features and building. Bedding is provided. There is a Seabeck surcharge for single occupant in a double room.

Saturday Variety Show The variety show is a favorite for decades at Seabeck, with the youth almost always stealing the show. The show is capped by folk dancing in the meeting hall, and various informal gatherings last well into the night.

Saturday Programming:

The theme for Seabeck this year is the metaphor of life as a circle. The Saturday morning program will feature a series of views into this and how/where we fit into our circles.

Youth Programs:

Roughly a third of the participants the typical year are the youth. This camp is one of their favorites. As a parent or assigned weekend guardian, we ask that you maintain vigilance on where they are for safety's sake. The youth have Colman lounge as a hang out zone where much of Saturday afternoon is dedicated to the preparation of their Evening Skit.

Polar Bear Swim: Regardless of the weather, the Polar Bear swim is held at 4PM on Saturday and involves a dip into the lagoon from the float. Without fail, some youth swim the distance to the bridge and back under watchful eye of a rowboat alongside.

Sunday: Sunday services are held at 10AM in the temple of the woods. Departure is after lunch is served – bag lunches are available if requested ahead of time.

Historic Seabeck:

Seabeck is a historic former logging community on Hood Canal just over the hills from Silverdale. It was founded by settlers in 18xx and is still steeped in history and mystery. A brief walk to the cemetery is a must where one gets a glimpse of the difficulty
